

Squib

The first time an audience ever saw a realistic representation of a person shot by a bullet on screen, Wajde used a condom filled with blood.

A single stick of dynamite cracked and the audience believed it, even after many had seen the real thing. After the film, the citizens gathered at the pub to drink brandy.

Smoke drifted from the chimneys. A waiter who was once executioner greeted the people with their drinks already at hand, knowing what they wanted, before they could even ask.